Election 2026 – U.S. Senate and House

by: Hiram Lupton

A couple of weeks ago we looked at the candidates for upcoming elections for local races. Now, we will take a quick look at the crowded field of candidates vying to see who will represent you in Washington D. C. in the U.S. Senate and U.S. House of Representatives. First the Senate. When an incumbent announces that they will not be seeking reelection, there is often a plethora of candidates who line up seeking to fill the soon to be vacated spot. That is what has happened since Republican Senator Thom Tillis made that announcement last year. Six Republicans, six Democrats, and one Libertarian will be on the primary ballot.

Republican

Donald Brown, Richard Dansie, Thomas Johnson, Michele Morrow, Elizabeth Temple, Michael Whatley

Democrat

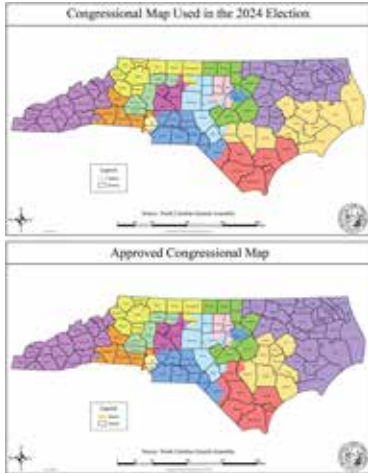

Robert Colon, Roy Cooper, Justin Dues, Daryl Farrow, Orick Quick, Marcus Williams

Libertarian

Shannon Bray

Probably the two most recognized names are former North Carolina Governor, Roy Cooper, and former Chairman of the Republican National Committee, Michael Whatley.

The race for who will represent North Carolina's 1st Congressional District in the U.S. House of Representatives, which includes

Newly drawn U.S. House Districts

Pamlico County, is not quite as crowded, but no less interesting. The interesting and somewhat controversial part is the redrawing of North Carolina's Congressional Districts by the North Carolina Legislature. This realignment puts Pamlico County, which was in the 3rd District, now in the 1st District. Greg Murphy is currently the Representative for the 3rd District, but since Pamlico County will now be in the 1st District, we will have a new Representative. Incumbent Don Davis, who is the current Representative for the 1st District is seeking reelection in his newly drawn District and is the only Democrat running. The Air Force Veteran from Snow Hill, NC has held his seat since 2023. There are five Republicans and one Libertarian lining up for the opportunity to challenge Davis in the fall.

Democrat

Don Davis,

Republican

Asa Buck, Laurie Buckhout, Bobby Hanig, Ashley-Nicole Russell, Eric Rouse,

Libertarian

Thomas Bailey

While there are several recognizable names among the challengers, perhaps the most familiar to Pamlico County is Bobby Hanig. Hanig is currently a State Senator but was once Pamlico County's Representative in the N.C. House of Representatives. He was also one of the driving forces in defeating last year's proposed shrimp trawl ban in the North Carolina Legislature which would have adversely affected the commercial fishing industry in our area. Also a familiar name is Asa Buck, who is currently the Sheriff in neighboring Carteret County.

With early voting scheduled to begin on February 12th, and primary election day on March 3rd, the election is quickly approaching. Many of these unfamiliar candidates may become very familiar names by then as each one, or at least each one with the available funding, will seek to get their name and viewpoints known in a quest for votes.

Hurricanes on the Court Pamlico Begins 2026 on the Road

by: Hiram Lupton

The Pamlico County High School Basketball teams opened 2026 on the road last week with a pair of game nights as visitors. On Wednesday they made the short trip over to West Craven to tangle with the Eagles. The Lady 'Canes were up first and Pamlico started the new year the same way they ended the old one, with a win. They controlled the game from the outset, building up a 19-point lead by the half. They never allowed West Craven the opportunity to get back in the game and won by a score of 63-37. Sydney Whitley-Reese led Pamlico with 32 points and Nya Clark added 25. The men were up next and the Hurricanes were within striking distance at the half, behind by ten at 30-20 but the Eagles slowly flew away in the second half, finally winning, 71-42. Darien Fisher led Pamlico with 15 points. While Wednesday's trip was relatively short, on Friday Pamlico took a long bus ride to Edenton to do battle with the Aces of John Holmes High School. The Ladies continued their winning ways, capturing a 49-39 victory. The men's team were on the wrong end of a 77-50 score. This week Pamlico steps into conference play, hosting East Carteret on Wednesday and traveling to Jones Senior on Friday.

Flu Season Hits Hard

by: Hiram Lupton

If you have experienced it first-hand, or have a family member who has, you already know that the 2025-26 edition of the flu season has been a particularly rough one. Just before Christmas break, The Pamlico School System went to virtual online learning in grades K through eight for the last day and a half before break to curb student exposure. Last Monday, CarolinaEast Medical Center in New Bern instituted visitor restrictions, limiting patients to only two visitors at a time and no visitors under the age of twelve years of age. So why is it so bad this year? It has much to do with the strain of influenza that is going around. The flu, like most infectious diseases, often goes through mutations, causing variations to the parent strain year-to-year. This season there have been seven different mutations identified from the flu strain we normally experience, H3N2 Influenza A. The worst variant, and most prevalent, has been named by health experts Subclade K. The other factor making this flu season especially severe deals with the vaccine. To manufacture the vaccine for a flu season, medical researchers must develop it several months before the first cases are even reported. Although much research goes into this, every year it can be a bit of a guessing game. Some years the vaccine is highly effective, some years not so much. This year is one of those "not so much years," as Subclade A has shown itself to be resistant to this season's vaccine. So, what are we to do, lock ourselves in the house and avoid all physical contact with other humans until spring? For most of us, that just isn't possible, but according to the Pamlico County Health Department (PCHD), there are steps we can take to limit your chances of catching the flu, and to decrease its severity if you do.

"It has been repeated many times, but washing your hands frequently really does decrease your risk," says Director of Nursing at the PCHD, Lynn Hardison. "Avoid touching your nose or mouth as much as possible is also good practice. Covering your face when you sneeze or cough also limits the spread of the flu and other air-borne diseases." She adds, "the best protection is still getting your flu shot. Even though the current vaccine may not give you full protection from the current strain, it could lessen the severity." If you think it is too late to help protect yourself by getting vaccinated this flu season, think again. Often February is the peak of the season so getting your shot now can still help. You can get these from your primary care physician, many pharmacies, and of course the Pamlico County Health Department. If you do begin to feel sick do your best to limit the spread. "Social distancing by staying home if you have symptoms and not sending your kids to school if they are sick helps reduce the spread" says Hardison. "Until you are free of a fever for at least 24 hours without the aid of a fever reducer, you are contagious.

Led by community colleges’ efforts, North Carolina ranks No. 1 for workforce development

Submitted by Pamlico Community College

North Carolina has been ranked No. 1 in Site Selection Magazine’s annual Workforce Development Rankings, in large part because of the role the state’s community colleges – including Pamlico – have in training men and women for great careers in the state’s everchanging economy.

Through programs including NCEdge Customized Training, ApprenticeshipNC, the Small Business Center Network and BioNetwork, North Carolina’s community colleges work directly with employers to deliver industry-aligned training that supports both expansion and competitiveness.

“This recognition affirms what companies experience every day when they locate and grow in North Carolina,” said Dr. Jeff Cox, president of NCCCS. “Our workforce development model is built on strong partnerships, local responsiveness and a clear focus on employer needs, which gives North Carolina a decisive advantage.”

For his part, PCC President Zac Schnell said the No. 1 ranking from Site Selection Magazine demonstrates the commitment Pamlico and the state’s other 57 community colleges have to preparing workers for rewarding careers.

“We are proud of the work our instructors do to meet the workforce demands of our state’s growing economy,” he said. “As a college, we try to be nimble so we can respond to market demands for high-quality employees in the growing sectors of the economy. As technologies change, all of us at Pamlico are ready to embrace new economic opportunities and prepare men and women for success.”

North Carolina’s No. 1 ranking by Site Selection Magazine comes just months after the state was named CNBC’s “Top State for Business” (2025), an honor that highlighted North Carolina’s robust and dynamic business climate across key sectors such as life sciences, advanced manufacturing, automotive, aerospace, defense, technology and food and beverage production.

John Loyack, vice president of economic development for NCCCS, said the ranking reinforces the System’s role as a strategic partner to industry.

“Our colleges operate at the intersection of education and economic development,” said Loyack. “We work side by side with employers to solve real workforce challenges, whether that means launching a new facility, adopting advanced technologies or upskilling an existing workforce.”

Central to this success is NCEdge, the System’s customized training program, which partners with businesses across the state to provide tailored workforce solutions. In the past four years alone, NCEdge has trained more than 100,000 North Carolinians, helping employees master new technologies and improve productivity.

In addition to customized training, the System delivers a coordinated set of workforce solutions that support employers across industries and regions:

- * ApprenticeshipNC expands registered apprenticeship throughout the state by combining paid, on-the-job learning with classroom instruction to strengthen talent pipelines and improve workforce retention.

- * The Small Business Center Network provides counseling, training and access-to-capital support to entrepreneurs and small businesses, helping drive job creation and local economic growth in communities statewide.

Katie Shorter leads Pamlico’s Small Business Center.

- * BioNetwork further strengthens the state’s workforce ecosystem by delivering specialized training, biomanufacturing support and applied research services that enable life sciences and biotechnology companies to innovate and scale.

Together, these programs deliver employer-driven workforce solutions across North Carolina, supporting companies from startup through expansion.

“As president, I take pride in the work our instructors do to prepare our state’s 21st century workforce,” Schnell said. “We’re ready to work with employers and others to grow our economy and move our state forward.”

The president continued, “We at PCC want to be an anchor of opportunity to help get you to where you want to go! In workforce development sectors or something else of interest to you, we are the place for you to start.”

CAPRICORN Traits & Overview

Smart, hardworking, and fully in control of their destiny, Capricorn signs will always get what they set their mind to, in both personal and professional life—no excuses. Capricorns may get a reputation as stubborn, but they simply know what they want, and also know how they wish other people would behave.

Natural rule-followers, Capricorns thrive on order and love strict rules, hierarchies, and set ways to do things. Can a Capricorn sign think outside the box? Yes, they can, but they prefer when they have strict boundaries to constrain against—free reign can make them feel paralyzed by choice. Capricorns are great at climbing the corporate ladder, and especially adept at making (and investing) money. Capricorns love family, and put a lot of stock in traditions. A Capricorn might stress themselves out trying to do everything perfectly—a Capricorn may feel like they must present a home-cooked meal every day, and would never admit to doing drive-thru or takeout. Capricorns believe presentation is everything, and their homes are usually Insta-worthy. A Capricorn sometimes is overly focused on what things look like, instead of how things feel, which could cause them to feel stifled and unhappy.

FINANCIAL FOCUS

Putting your aging parents’ wishes first

Dan M. Roberts

As your parents grow older, it may be time to talk with them about financial and aging issues, which may involve difficult conversations.

You'll want to be careful how you approach this. Mention ahead of time that you'd like to talk to them about their future plans and reassure them that you want to understand their wishes, so their affairs will be taken care of as they would like.

If your parents are agreeable, choose a comfortable location and ask whom to invite (or not invite). Then, think about how to open the conversation, preferably not with what they want to do with their money, as this could be interpreted as your seeking information about your inheritance or being skeptical about their financial decisions. Instead, build a broader discussion about their vision for their aging years. A series of shorter conversations may allow you to cover topics more comfortably rather than trying to solve everything at once.

Try to address these areas:

- Health care – Seek to learn whether your parents have established appropriate health-related legal documents such as a health care power of attorney, which gives someone the authority to make decisions about their medical care if they become unable, and a living will, which spells out the extraordinary medical treatments they may or may not want.

- Independence – As people age, they may begin to lose their independence. Have your parents considered options for long-term care, such as an assisted living community, a nursing home or a home health aide? If they plan to receive support from family members, do your parents’ expectations match yours?

- Financial goals – Focusing on the personal and financial aspects of the legacy your parents want to leave can be a valuable conversation. Have they updated their will or other estate documents, such as a living trust? Have they created a durable power of attorney for a trusted family member to make financial decisions for them if they become incapacitated? Do they have the proper beneficiary designations on their insurance policies, retirement plan and bank accounts? If you position these issues around your parents having control over transferring their assets, rather than curiosity over “who will get what,” you’ll more likely have a productive conversation.

- Last wishes – You’ll want to learn whether your parents have instructions in their will about their funerals and last wishes. Express that you or another close family member should know who is responsible for making sure their wishes are met in a timely fashion.

Money, independence and aging can be sensitive topics. You don't have to go it alone, though — enlist help from another close family member. Or, if your parents work with an attorney, financial professional or other trusted advisor, consider asking if they're interested in having them participate in your talks. You might even be able to introduce your parents to one of your advisors.

In any case, keep talking. These conversations can be challenging, but if handled correctly can be of great benefit to your parents and your entire family.

Preparing Youth for the Future

Kait Neeland
4-H Agent

Often when I am writing an article, I am focused on sharing the fun times we have here in Pamlico County with our 4-H Program. 4-H is fun! From learning how to care for dairy calves, to sewing, to cooking and nutrition. However, while we are having that fun our youth are gaining valuable life skills. Often these skills are hard skills (specific and measurable abilities). Hard skills are very important for youth, giving them a chance to develop strong foundations for post-secondary education and careers.

Much of youth education is focused on providing youth the opportunity to gain these hard skills to be prepared for their adult lives. It seems that every year that passes it grows harder and harder to prepare our teenagers and young adults to enter the workforce; this year has only highlighted that fact. Between new emerging markets and the robotizing of old positions, there is a constant need for the acquisition of new hard skills. However, even life-long dedication to learning isn't enough to make one competitive in the labor market. According to the USAID Office of Education, workers also need to be fluent in several soft skills.

What are Soft Skills? For that matter what are Hard Skills? Hard Skills are the cumulation of all formal education and technical training with an emphasis on STEM. Soft Skills however, are knowledge of and ability to utilize relation skills and emotional intelligence. All of these soft skills are integral to a person's ability to collaborate with coworkers and to provide superior understanding to clients. Many employers rate the importance of Soft Skills equal to a prospective employee's skill and training with Hard Skills. Soft Skills that were deemed especially important were high-order thinking skills (or critical thinking/analysis), self-control, social skills or emotional intelligence, and communication.

While all of these skills are important and valued across fields, communication was most often given extremely high importance. Employers found the ability for their employees to clearly and concisely articulate information to both coworkers and clients, through written and oral means, integral to their institution's success. Further, effective communication often indicates good social and relation skills, increasing effectiveness in teamwork. Most employers actively seek employees who cannot only succeed in a team environment, but thrive in it.

Can these Soft Skills be acquired through traditional formal education? What else can be done to expand our young peoples' Soft Skills? Soft Skills can be learned, to an extent, through school however, there can never be enough opportunities for teens and younger kids to practice communication and their social relation skills.

A great opportunity for youth to engage with one another while building their oral and written communication skills, is 4-H Presentations. We will be kicking off our 2026 Pamlico Presentation program at the end of February. During this program youth will be able to work on their active listening skills, extemporaneous speaking, and formal speaking. Each participant will research, write, and present their own presentation at County Activity Day. Youth can also present at at the South East 4-H District Activity Day, and at State presentations if youth place at District Activity Day. This program is open to youth ages 5 – 18.

If you would like more information about our 2026 Spring 4-H programs please give us a call or check out our Pamlico 4-H page. You'll find all the details and registration info on our website: pamlico.ces.ncsu.edu. To complete your registration, you'll also need to enroll in 4-H Online it's required for all NC 4-H programs. Don't worry if you're new to the process, the link is on our website, and if you have any trouble at all, just give us a call. We're happy to walk you through it step-by-step! Want to stay in the loop about future programs and events? Be sure to sign up for our Pamlico 4-H email list so you never miss an update. 3 metrics that can help people gauge their financial health

Effective money management can help men and women achieve their short- and long-term goals. Wise investment strategies and a commitment to saving for retirement are great ways to manage money over the long haul, but it's important to seek ways to do so in the short-term as well.

Monitoring financial health is a short-term strategy that can keep individuals on a path toward long-term security. While various metrics can be looked to as indicators of financial health, adults can keep these three variables in mind as they look to utilize short-term strategies to ensure their long-term success.

1. Debt-to-income ratio: Debt-to-income ratio can be a good indicator of financial health. The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau defines debt-to-income ratio (DTI) as all your monthly debt payments divided by your monthly gross income. Lenders utilize DTI to determine the creditworthiness of loan applicants, but individuals also can use it as a metric to gauge their financial health. Monthly debt payments include mortgages, auto loans, student loans, and other debt payments, including credit cards. Individuals whose debt payments total $2,000 per month and who earn a gross monthly income of $6,000 have a 33 percent DTI. The credit experts at Experian suggest a DTI of 35 percent or less is indicative that debt is being handled well, so that's a figure to keep in mind.

2. Savings balances: Savings accounts don't generate as much interest as they did throughout the 1980s and 1990s. According to Nasdaq, savings interest rates climbed as high as 8 percent in the 1980s, but have fallen below 0.25 percent since the financial crisis of 2008. That's led some to devalue savings, but savings balances can be a good indicator of financial health. A substantial savings account can help individuals avoid taking on debt when costly emergencies and expenses arise unexpectedly, thus helping them keep their DTI in a financially advantageous range.

3. Credit score: Credit score is another strong, and easily accessible, indicator of personal financial health. Individuals can now access their credit scores for free each month through their banks and credit card providers. Experian notes that credit scores range from 300 to 850, and where a score falls in that range can indicate if a person is managing credit in a healthy or unhealthy way. Experian reports scores 740 and above are very good, while scores between 670 and 739 are considered good. Scores between 300 and 579 are considered poor, while a score between 580 and 669 is considered fair. Scores below 669 indicate there's room to use credit more wisely, which involve reducing reliance on consumer credit, making payments on time and ensuring payments are more than the monthly minimum.

These three metrics and others can be utilized by individuals looking to gauge their financial health in an effort to realize their short- and long-term goals.

Hurricanes on the Mat

by: Hiram Lupton

The Pamlico County High School wrestling team hosted a pair of non-conference foes in duals action last Thursday evening. While wrestlers compete individuals, duals wrestling is a competition where points are awarded to the team for different types of wins such as a pin, a forfeit, decision, major decision, or technical fall. The highest number of team points awarded for a match win, 6 points, is by a pin or a win by forfeit. Points all add up. An individual wrestler can lose but still help their team by avoiding a pin and keep the score with their opponent within 7 points. This is considered a win by decision, and the winning team is awarded 3 points. In Thursday's matches, Pamlico took on North Pitt followed by bouts against West Craven. Typically, when three teams are involved in dual competition, the two visitors face off in the first matches, followed by the home squad versus the visitor who traveled from the farthest to compete with the home team and closest competing team finishing out the evenings matches. In Pamlico's first match, they were defeated by North Pitt, 70-10. The Hurricanes bounced back in the final matches, besting West Craven by a score of 54-30.

Pamlico County Middle School took on a pair of conference opponents in team wrestling action last Friday evening in matches that had been postponed from last December due to weather. Pamlico held their own but lost both close matches, 58-48 to Tucker Creek Middle School and 58-46 to Grover C. Fields Middle School. Despite the team losses, the young Hurricanes continued to gain valuable experience.

According to the American Cancer Society, the average age a man is diagnosed with prostate cancer is about 66. In fact, six out of every 10 prostate cancer diagnoses are in men who are 65 and older. Though prostate cancer is the second leading cause of cancer death among American men, most men diagnosed with the disease do not die from it. Screening could play a role in that, and the ACS recommends that men thinking about getting tested for prostate cancer learn as much as they can about screening so they can make the most informed decisions possible. Speaking with a personal physician about screening is recommended, as the effects of screening continue to be studied by researchers.

The Trump Administration loses most of their court cases. They want people to believe the judges are at fault. After losing they call out the judges by name, calling them deranged, crooked, rogue, lunatics and radical leftist.

They lose because the judges base their decisions on the facts and the law and the Administration does not have the facts and law to support their claims. Their unconstitutional lawlessness violates the U.S. Constitution.

The judges took an oath to honor the U.S. Constitution and they follow it. The President and his Cabinet took a similar oath and they violate it.

National Blood Donor Month January 2026

According to the American Red Cross, winter is “one of the most difficult times of year to collect enough blood products to meet patient needs.” That’s because of, among other things, busy holiday schedules and bad weather often resulting in canceled blood drives. Furthermore, seasonal illnesses such as the flu force potential donors to forgo their blood donations. That’s just one of the reasons that National Blood Donor Month, which has taken place each January since 1970, is such an important observance. Donating blood saves many lives and improves health for many people. According to the World Health Organization, “blood is the most precious gift that anyone can give to another person — the gift of life. A decision to donate your blood can save a life, or even several if your blood is separated into its components — red cells, platelets and plasma.” Let’s learn more.

National Blood Donor Month timeline
1628 - Book gets the blood going- English physician William Harvey publishes "On the Motion of the Heart and Blood," describing his account of the circulation of blood through the human body.

Early 1900's - Are you my type? The Austrian Dr. Karl Landsteiner develops the ABO blood group system. Jan Jansky, a Czech doctor is credited with the first classification of blood into four types: A, B, AB, and O.

1907 - Ottenberg makes the first transfusion - Based on Landsteiner's discoveries, the American physician Reuben Ottenberg performs the first successful blood transfusion using blood typing and crossmatching at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York.

1937 - Physician opens first blood bank - Hungarian physician Bernard Fantus establishes the first hospital blood bank in the United States at Cook County Hospital in Chicago.

- How to Observe National Blood Donor Month
1. Donate - Not just in honor of National Blood Donor Month, but in the simple spirit of providing the stuff of life to those who need it most. Donate now. Donate again in eight weeks. Repeat.
 2. Inspire - National Blood Donor Month can inspire people to donate. And those donations can in turn inspire others to donate, creating an exponential increase in blood donations when and where they're needed the most.
 3. Learn and remember your blood type - What's your blood type? Some examples: O positive donors are needed more often than other blood types. O negative donors are considered "universal donors." AB positive donors are "universal recipients."

- 5 Amazing Facts About Blood Donations
1. Not enough blood for all of us - According to the American Red Cross, about 38 percent of the U.S. population can donate blood — but only 10 percent actually do.
 2. Fill 'er up with regular — donations - Brookhaven National Laboratory says that people who begin donating blood at age 17 and donate every eight weeks will have donated 48 gallons of blood by age 76.
 3. Donate blood and get medical info - When we donate blood, labs examine the donation for multiple infectious diseases, such as HIV and West Nile virus.
 4. Dogs can donate, too! - Your dog can donate blood, too. Check with your veterinarian and the Humane Society to make sure you know the local rules and regulations for this type of donation.
 5. The multiplier effect is huge - Every time we donate one pint of blood, the potential is there to save three lives.

- Why National Blood Donor Month is Important
1. Donating blood save lives - Someone needs blood every few seconds in the United States. And more than 4.5 million Americans would die every year without lifesaving blood transfusions. National Blood Donor Month helps us remember these vital statistics.
 2. It's the gift that keeps on giving - The American Red Cross needs 13,000 blood donations every single day to maintain an appropriate blood supply. Fortunately, eligible blood donors can donate blood every eight weeks.
 3. It's good for donors, too - The American Journal of Epidemiology reports that blood donors are 88 percent less likely to have a heart attack.

Chris Lee pinned as new Marine Patrol Colonel

MOREHEAD CITY – Chris Lee was formally pinned during a ceremony today as the new Colonel of the N.C. Marine Patrol, the top law enforcement officer at the Division of Marine Fisheries.

Lee, who has worn the Marine Patrol uniform for 18 years and most recently served as Captain of Marine Patrol District 1, was pinned by his father with the golden eagles of a colonel at a ceremony at the N.C. Department of Environmental Quality’s Division of Marine Fisheries headquarters in Morehead City. A pinning ceremony marks a significant advancement in a law enforcement officer’s career.

The Marine Patrol Colonel manages more than 64 individuals, including 57 officers and six dispatchers, and directs law enforcement efforts over 2.7 million acres of ocean and coastal fishing waters in 21 eastern counties.

“The N.C. Marine Patrol plays a vital role by enforcing fishing regulations and providing water, air and ground support to other DEQ divisions, including during emergencies,” said DEQ Secretary Reid Wilson. “Colonel Lee will do an outstanding job because of his tremendous experience, vision, and commitment to the Marine Patrol’s mission.”

Lee took over as head of Marine Patrol Jan. 1, replacing Col. Carter Witten, who retired Dec. 31, 2025.

Lee brings a wealth of experience in rescue operations, which will help in strengthening the Division’s work with the N.C. Department of Emergency Management in keeping North Carolinians safe.

One of Lee’s most notable accomplishments is that he helped form and then served as captain of the Marine Patrol’s Swiftwater Rescue Team.

“That’s been one of the most rewarding things of my career,” Lee said. “The relationships we have made across the state have done wonders for us as an agency, and we are providing a better service to the citizens of North Carolina.”

Lee started building and training the rescue team in late 2019, and in 2021, it became the first state law enforcement-certified swiftwater rescue team in North Carolina. Lee says he cannot take sole credit for the team, as he has had to train alongside them.

“We were all learning together and trying to make it happen to better serve in times of need,” Lee said.

The team has been deployed numerous times across the state. In the fall of 2024, the team was one of 71 swiftwater rescue teams deployed to Western North Carolina to assist with rescuing motorists and residents from floodwaters of Hurricane Helene.

In addition to performing water rescues, Marine Patrol officers have flown DEQ staff to survey the extent of shoreline erosion and flooded animal waste operations after hurricanes, provided security in business districts hit by tornadoes, and helped transport food to flooded communities.

One of Lee’s goals as Colonel is to make the Marine Patrol even more of an asset to the people of North Carolina through training and working with North Carolina Emergency Management, while continuing to serve as the fisheries law enforcement agency.

Originally from Colerain, Lee spent his youth fishing on the Chowan River. In his free time, he helped his best friend’s family fish pound nets, crab pots and gill nets.

“My father instilled in me at a young age to respect the resource,” Lee said. “Law enforcement and enjoying the outdoors have been a major part of my life for as long as I can remember.”

Lee’s father was a deputy sheriff and later both parents were training coordinators for NC Department of Corrections. When he was 17, while vacationing with his family at Kill Devil Hills, Lee spotted a 26-foot N.C. Marine Patrol Regulator boat.

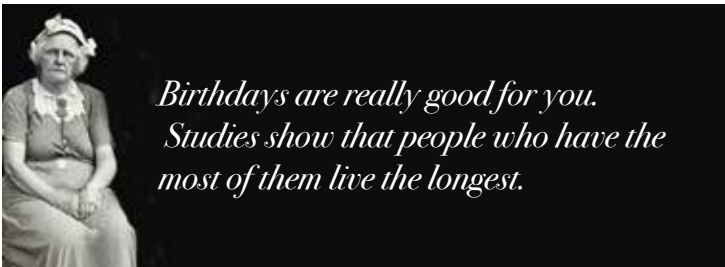

“That was the first time I’d ever heard of Marine Patrol,” Lee said. “To me, it sounded like a dream job.”

After high school, Lee attended N.C. Army National Guard boot camp and became an Infantryman in Bravo Company 1/120th. In 2003, he served in Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Lee returned from overseas and began Basic Law Enforcement Training at Beaufort Community College and later worked for the Edenton Police Department before joining the Marine Patrol in March 2008. Lee worked his way through the ranks serving as a patrol officer in District 1, later as Sergeant and then as Captain of District 1, which runs from Ocracoke to the Virginia state line.

Lee completed his degree in criminal justice after joining the Marine Patrol. He was also certified as a general instructor and specialized firearms instructor through the N.C. Criminal Justice and Training Standards Commission. In 2012, Lee received the NC Marine Fisheries Enforcement Officer of the Year award from the Governor’s Conservation Achievement Awards Program.

Lee was joined in his pinning by his wife Melissa, who pinned his badge; sons, Sonny and Banks; parents, Vernon and Tammy Lee; brother, Bryan Lee; and mother-in-law Kathy Rea.

AROUND THE COUNTY

Pamlico Betty Jo Rodgers, Correspondent

The pelicans are here every morning for breakfast and are getting fat and sassy. The trout must really be a favorite breakfast treat for them. As the sun begins to slowly rise and highlight them on the pier pilings, they amaze me with their smooth movements even though they are an awkward looking bird.

Still see an occasional deer when I come home late in the afternoon. I am glad that deer season is over, because I will see more of these beautiful animals as winter continues.

This has been a sad week for the Stonewall community. Charles Alexander has changed residence to his heavenly home. Charles had been the mayor of Stonewall for 40 years. He was the patriarch of his family and his church. He will be missed by many family and friends, but his legacy will live on in those he loved and shared his life with. Memories will light the shadows of our minds every time we see something that reminds us of him – like a green John Deer tractor, or the “Seasons Greetings” sign, or the American flags on the fourth of July, etc.

Baptism of the Lord Sunday at Stonewall Methodist Church was well attended. There were several visitors, including more families with young children. Before closing everyone was asked to remember their baptism and take a small stone as a remembrance.

My article this week will be short. Please remember Penny $ Farmer and her family in your prayers.

Celebrating birthdays in January are Amy Gatlin (1/13), Shelby Sutton, Elizabeth Farmer Tillman (1/15), Kelli Hinson and Ruth Ireland (1/16), Ned Ferris (1/21), Kate Moye, Ellen Lupton, and Jenny Lupton (1/22), Desiree Brinson (1/25), Ann Smithwick (1/26), Willy Hope (1/28), Nan Gilbert, Becky Sadler (1/30), and Shari Roberts Hale (1/31).

Have a blessed week. eXhausted? Take Vitamin X. “But refuse profane and old wives’ fables, and exercise thyself rather unto godliness.” (1Timothy 4:7)

Grantsboro Jeff Roberts, Correspondent

Good morning, good afternoon and good evening. Hope all of you are doing well, I apologize for missing last week, completely my fault. There are weeks when the news comes easy; events, gatherings, celebrations that seem to write themselves. And then there are weeks like this one, quieter on the surface but heavier underneath. Over the past few days, I’ve heard the same words repeated again and again in different conversations: Did you hear? Names spoken softly. Pauses where answers should be. Loss has a way of moving through a community quietly, touching far more people than we often realize.

Driving the back roads of Pamlico County, I found myself stopping one morning at Trent Free Will Baptist Church in Merritt. The building sat calmly under the night sky, lights glowing warmly against the dark, just as they’ve likely done for years. There was nothing dramatic happening, no cars in the lot, no doors opening or closing, just the steady presence of a place that has witnessed countless moments of joy, sorrow, and everything in between.

Churches like this aren’t just places of worship. In small communities, they’re landmarks of memory. They are where families gather in celebration and where they lean on one another in times of grief. They are where generations pass through the same doors first carried in, later walking on their own, and eventually returning with children of their own. Even when the building is quiet, it carries the weight of those stories.

Trent Free Will Baptist Church is part of a long Free Will Baptist tradition rooted deeply in eastern North Carolina, a tradition that has emphasized community, accountability, and shared responsibility for generations. While specific dates and milestones may fade with time, the role these churches play remains clear. They are places where people come together not because life is perfect, but because it isn’t.

Standing there with my camera, I thought about how light behaves at night. It doesn’t overpower the darkness, it simply pushes back enough of it to guide the way. That’s what places like this do. They don’t erase loss or answer every question, but they offer something steady when the world feels uncertain. A familiar doorway. A sanctuary. A reminder that no one walks through hardship entirely alone.

In times like these, when our community feels the weight of loss more than celebration, it’s worth remembering the quiet strength that exists all around us. It lives in buildings that have stood through decades of change. It lives in people who show up, even when it’s hard. And it lives in the simple act of gathering to remember, to grieve, and to carry on together.

Some weeks don’t call for loud headlines or big announcements. Some weeks ask us to pause, to reflect, and to acknowledge what truly holds a community together. On Florence Road in Merritt, beneath a dark sky and a steady light, that reminder stands quietly just as it always has. I hope that you all have a blessed week.

By Jim Kellenberger & Beth Obenshain 1-8-26

The Rotary Club was back in full swing at our first meeting of 2026 on Monday, January 6 at Brantley’s. 2026 marks the 75th anniversary of our club’s founding, and Beth and I intend to tell the readers of this publication some of the things we have done over the years and some of the things we intend to do.

A look back to December 2025 shows a busy bunch of Rotarians. Club members rang the bell for the Salvation Army on two occasions in front of the Piglet, decorated and rode in a float for the Oriental and Bayboro Christmas parades, and cooked and served food for 150 folks at the annual Luby’s Breakfast. Over the last six months, our Happy Dollar Man, Jim Kellenberger (sporting a fine shapo in attached photo) coaxed $513 out of our members. These donated $$$ gave the giver a chance to reflect on why they were happy that night. In December, Rotary donated this money to Pamlico County Fishes and Loaves Outreach to support their mission which is to accumulate and distribute high-quality, nutritious food to those who need assistance in Pamlico County, regardless of race, ethnicity, or religious affiliation.

Rotary Club of Oriental Happenings

Looking ahead, our largest fundraiser for the year, the Oriental Boat Show and Nautical Flea Market, is just around the corner. Held over three days in April (from Friday the 10th at noon to Sunday 12th at 3:00), this show is located in the heart of our town along Hodges street at the harbor. Last year’s show helped us raise nearly $30,000 for high school and community college student scholarships. A big shout-out to all those folks who will exhibit, talk in educational seminars, buy tickets, sponsor, and be inconvenienced by our presence along Hodges street for the better part of a week. We could not do what we do for Pamlico county without your help and patience.

Another big part of the income we generate to give back to our county is from our Tent, Table, and Chair Rental program. To make sure you don’t get wet and you have a place to sit at your next event, contact our Tent Team Scheduler Extraordinaire Charles Stackhouse at (919) 920-1355. Our prices are so good that you might want to order two or three tents.

If some or all of this sounds like an organization you want to be a member of, we have room for you. Contact our Membership Chair, Jim Kellenberger at (919) 621-0362 or jimkellenberger05@gmail.com and he will help you become part of the largest private philanthropic group in the world.

Until next week... Service Above Self

Vandemere Sandra Snipes, Correspondent

My apologies for not having written since last year. True to being a village by the sea, we entered 2026 full of maritime adventure.

We are fortunate to have dedicated adults in our area who actively support the Sea Scouts program. Sea Scouts is a nationally recognized, adult-mentored youth leadership and maritime program for young people ages 14 to 20. Sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America, the program focuses on building confidence, seamanship skills, and leadership through hands-on experiences on the water.

Participants learn boating safety, navigation, sailing, marine engineering, environmental stewardship, and teamwork—all while developing responsibility, service-minded values, and lifelong skills. Sea Scouts promotes character, citizenship, and personal growth, preparing youth for both maritime careers and leadership roles within their communities.

Locally, Jeff Michal, Vicky Jones, and Steve Withrow are three mentors who have created meaningful opportunities for youth to learn and grow. Since 2023, this group—made up of various Sea Scout Ships—has organized the annual Commodore’s Cruise. This year’s theme is “Chasing Tall Ships.”

As part of this exciting experience, the Sea Scouts will embark on a two-week summer journey to Baltimore, visiting points of interest along the way and taking part in a remarkable opportunity to escort tall ships into port during a 22-mile passage. Before undertaking such voyages, Sea Scouts must meet requirements (like earning badges), such as boat maintenance, seamanship proficiency, and safety training.

We wish this outstanding team great success as they prepare for what promises to be an unforgettable journey this summer. Fair winds and following seas!

On another maritime adventure, the Eladene is finally back home in Vandemere. If you remember, we previously embarked on a journey via the Intracoastal Waterway to see the fireworks in Washington, D.C. On our return trip, we struck a submerged log. The Eladene made it to Coinjock, NC, before we realized the extent of the damage and had to pull her out of the water. The “money pit” stories are real—but completing the journey home was highly gratifying.

The waters were like glass as we made our way south through locks, swing bridges, train bridges, and across the sounds. Coinjock is a must-stop; not only for the excellent customer service, but also for the best prime rib around. Dowry Creek, near Belhaven, was another memorable stop, offering outstanding hospitality, peaceful surroundings, and majestic views that truly leave an impression.

We look forward to the next maritime adventure. In the meantime... Come see what Vandemere is all about at www.vandemerenc.com.
